“No digas tonterías, Leo, los extraños no se casan”.

Leo Zikos debería estar celebrando su próxima boda con su conveniente prometida, pero ella lo dejaba frío. Era una extraña de belleza natural, Grace Donovan, quien encendía su sangre. De modo que decidió aprovechar una última noche de libertad...

Pero esa noche, y el resultado de la prueba de embarazo unas semanas después, destrozó los planes de Leo, que debía romper con su prometida y casarse con Grace.

Ella no quería casarse con un hombre al que apenas conocía, pero Leo estaba dispuesto a reclamar a su heredero y tenía el dinero y la influencia necesarios para hacer que sus exigencias fuesen atendidas.

3.5*** read on this LG book. Not really a review, just my thoughts on this one :)

I love LG, everyone knows I love LG, but there comes a time when love leads to like. This is the case with this little novel. LG's heroines are always on the quirky side, I love that. This heroine, for the most part, I did not love. Why you say, it is because she rubbed me the wrong way. She was a cold one, this heroine, nothing likable to really redeem her in my eyes.

I get that with her childhood, her Mom dying at a young age then going off to live with the relatives and being treated as second class would play havoc with anyone, but she came across as cold and just so matter of fact. When she had thoughts to give her baby up for adoption, I felt her reasoning were sound, but then again, her baby daddy is a billionaire, why did she even think of adopting out, made no sense, at this point of the book, the hero did not know of the pregnancy. Thank goodness, the hero put her mind to rest on that score. I did feel sorry for her when she thought that she had lost her baby, but then again, she pushed the hero away like he did not lose a baby himself. (Baby lived).

I did like the hero. Typical alpha, clueless, yes, I'm too sexy for my skin type of LG hero which she excels at. Overall, I did enjoy the book, would have liked a better heroine, someone softer.

I usually enjoy LG's books - this one not so much, sort of boring and I started skipping the writing where there was no dialog - which seemed to be too much for my tastes. Just didn't get that happy, warm, fuzzy feeling with this book.

Kind of a phone it in LG with the exception of the surprisingly strong heroine.

H and h are immediately attracted to each other, and, bless my boots, if the heroine doesn't clinically, well mentally clinically while body is overwhelmed with lust, to throw her virginity away with the gorgeous H. Added bonus, she gets a place to sleep since her bitchy, selfish cousin has made her sleep in the lobby for the past three night while she shacks up with her own fellow.

Passion ensues. She's a virgin with a hero with a broken condom and said hero has alpha-romero Greek tycoon sperm.

The H has a broken engagement with a surprisingly nice ex-fiancee/OW, daddy/half-brother issues, shut-down tycoon feelings.

What's different is the heroine. She pops the hero's balloon more than one time which basically tells me that, one, I am a big fat hypocrite, as the heroine is pretty strong and makes it clear she COULD live without the hero. And, two, I kind of adore LG's Scotty, voluptuous heroines especially when they create havoc in the H's life.

For a Greek tycoon hero in HarleyLand, he's a pretty nice guy. He doesn't slut shame her, he doesn't call her a gold digger, and he respects her. What's wrong with him?

There are some insufferable relatives, specifically the H's aunt by marriage and the need-to-be-dead cousin. I guess wallowing in the knowledge that they will NEVER be invited to any one of the Greek H's many, many abodes will have to be enough.

It was definitely enjoyable, but I felt like this was the poor man's LG even though it is Lynne Graham.

Reminds me of Joan Collins.... the poor man's Elizabeth Taylor

The beginning of Lynne Graham's The Greek Demands His Heir was as hilarious as its title. h is a nerd girl and proud of it, feisty redhead studying to become a doctor (yeah for modern Harlequin heroines!). When she meets the suave H who is so stuck in Harlequinny 80s hero-mode, it is almost like a time travel novel.

He is all like "blah blah blah I am pepe le piewwwww and you are my gorgeous, burning passion" and she is all like "I wonder if this experiment will disprove my theory on female pheromones and how will it compare to statistics on female sexual response, hmmm?"

This is a low-angst Harlequin with a hero who is more beta than alpha, a smart and funny heroine, and though there is some OW-OM drama, it is not the kind that makes you want to bash either of their faces in with your Kindle.

The ending and especially the epilogue was all sugar coated rainbows and unicorns and was really dragging on. That is just my personal preference and I am sure most readers who are not as cynical and easily amused as me will absolutely love it.

Final verdict: Not bad!

Kiki says

So what EXACTLY happened to the wedding ring situation???

SOMEONE, ANYONE, FUCKING EXPLAIN TO ME THE LACK OF WEDDING RING'S RESOLUTION AND HOW THE DENSE HERO DIDN'T STILL GET IT?

And WHY was it swept under the metaphorical rug.

HOW would he feel if SHE denied to wear his ring?

And scratch all that, WHY WAS THAT FUCKING NOT RESOLVED?

2 stars simply because of that, because it detracted from my enjoyment!

Crazy cheesy!!! I liked it a whole bunch and I really liked how the main girl character, Grace was no pushover. She was spunky.

Lynne Graham has always been an auto-buy/auto-read/auto-anything for me. But with this book, I was really disappointed. It was meh and not the story it could have been. After reading just a few chapters I wanted this book to end because I don't want to read anymore TSTL moments from them. They weren't the type of hero/heroine you want to root for.

Geraldine Sadiku says

An enjoyable read that although does not set the pages on fire is a good solid romance with Grace and Leo having to overcome their own obstacles to ensure their future. Still worth a read.

Lynne Graham is an automatic buy for me...I have read dozens of her books which I have really liked....but her latest was just such a ....HUGE DISAPPOINTMENT!!!!

I suppose one could say that this story is about Cinderella meeting her Prince Charming...a trope that I normally like...except that this Cinderella as something more like...

Grace Donovan aka Cinderella has always been the outsider with her family that took her in when her mother died. Overworked and overlooked, she's managed to survive and due to her being brainy is about to complete her medical degree.

Forced to join her awful cousin on a Greek island holiday, she of course finds herself on a super yacht, with a super gorgeous billionaire who is having his last night of sex flings before he marries his best friend!!! Hello, yes, he has a very open relationship with his fiancée. Grace agrees to a one night stand so she can get "rid" of her virginity!!! She is after all 25 years old!!!! And why not with a rich tycoon!!!!

So, off she goes back home after a night of sex....not that sexy really because the condom breaks!!!! Yikes!!!

Now pregnant, kicked out of home by her wicked aunt, is found by the hero, Leo, who has been trying to contact her to find out if she's pregnant. When he tracks her down, she tells him that she's thinking about giving up the baby for adoption because it's going to interfere with her studies!!! Leo, give this woman a huge miss.....she's a stupid and idiotic person..yes, I know you like her red hair and green eyes....but she's not a nice person. Believe me!!!!

By now, I am so not into this...I 'm thinking I want to slap some sense into her!!!!

Leo, marry Marina, you're ex fiancée and best friend....believe me she's a better bet!!! In fact, Marina was the only secondary character I liked.....Leo was a bit better than Grace but I just wished he had a bit more sense.

I didn't feel any emotional connection between Grace & Leo and found it hard to accept that everything would end happily ever after for him.!

Not one of my favorites by this author and certainly not a keeper!!!

Heroine is a virgin medical student. Hero is in an "open" engagement. OW has history with both half brothers. Story was a little thin, but I liked it better once I read the second book in the series. Say 2 and a half stars. Not a fan of one night stands, so that might have affected my enjoyment.

I liked this one a lot. For once an h who was willing to make a different choice than insta marriage and parenthood. I thought adoption was a very valid consideration, given her circumstances. LG went above par with this lady and I was pretty happy that the h was assertive, but within HPlandia h diameters.

I thought the h was too nice to her aunt, but that is an LG idiosyncrasy I just put up with. I loved, loved, loved how she told the H he was a cheating rat bastard (even though she was sorta wrong) and was not all over marrying him even though she sorta liked him. I loved how she laid it all out for the H when she thought she miscarried, for once an LG h says exactly everything that should be said in a situation like that.

I liked how the H had to keep checking himself to not do stupid things around the h and had to apologize about his actions, repeatedly. I like how the H finally figured out he was an idiot and I like how he tried hard to get back in with the h.

I did not like the ex-fiancee, no matter how helpful, cause srsly what kind of skank goes to a pregnant woman the H wants to marry and offers her money to leave and have an abortion and "quit messing up everyone's lives" when she herself did not really want to marry the H. Tacky, but the h was gracious about it - however that friendship needs to go, the sooner the better.

All in all a very good LG with some really great h moments and I liked the H too, he really wasn't a jerk at all -but he was kinda dumb sometimes.

I just cant warm up to a heroine who so easily wants to give her child up for adoption and calls it a stupid mistake. Also the writing was not engaging plot was kind of boring and contrived.

***4.5 Stars*****

I absolutely love this book and have already read it fourteen times. It just seems I can't get enough! I'm drawn to it like Leo is drawn to Grace. This is a book I highly recommend.

Leo Zikos has been engaged to his childhood friend, Marina, for three years. It's a business-only arrangement pure and simple and neither is in love with the other. They had an agreement that they would both continue to discreetly see others as there has been no intimacy between them. A very odd relationship to this American gal but maybe not so much in other countries. He is left cold and detached by this union-to-be and has a night out, visiting his friend and business partner at their new club.

Grace, our heroine, is a med student with another year left to go. She was expected to accompany her cousin on a holiday to Turkey. She had been taken in by her aunt and uncle after her mother passed away and they treat her like a slave, denying her the privileges their daughter has. While in Turkey her cousin hooked up with a guy and Grace was expected to sleep in the hotel lobby. She decided to dress up and go to a club one evening while her cousin was with her temporary lover.

This same evening Leo went to the club he and his partner owned and when he laid eyes on the beauty that was one floor below him he was gobsmacked. The attraction was immediate and he had to meet her. Grace was a virgin and was determined to rid herself of that obnoxious moniker. She spent the evening with Leo and they ended up on his yacht and shared the master suite. They had a malfunction with the condom and now Leo awaits word from her whether she is pregnant or not.

Wow! I loved this book. It's a great read and the sequel that features his illegitimate brother is as well.

I know there are quite a few who didn't care for it for various reasons. I would like to touch on a couple of those. Some say Leo cheated on Marina (but no one, that I read, accused Marina of cheating on him...a bit male-biased there) but they had an agreement about being with others before their marriage because they didn't love each other, really didn't see each other all that often. Their engagement was in name only more for status and a business deal and they had never been intimate. Leo had always placed her strictly in the friend zone.

Marina, in the past, had been in love with Leo but he never returned her feelings. She was now involved with a gentleman who had an ill wife that had been in a sanitarium or nursing home and no longer recognized her husband or children. She would never recovery. Marina was in agreement that Leo could be with whomever he chose until it was closer to the wedding. Then, there is Grace and her willingness to give up her child for adoption. If you read it closely and watch how her mind changes it's somewhat obvious, at least to me, that she had made a hasty decision based on being alone and in financial distress. Grace had suffered with a horrible mother and her father was not in the picture so she certainly didn't want that for her child. Grace thought almost anything would be a better life for her child than how she was raised with a mother who was a drug addict and refused to work and if she did it was immediately spent on drugs. And then there was the father whom her mother convinced her walked away. It hurt her to think her child would endure what she had. She also worried about going it alone and she was scared and frightened. I think at this point she was not recognizing any of this emotionally, but factually, because she shut down her emotions for the time being like she did most of her life. I think the child began to become more real for her after Leo showed up. She was no longer alone and he was definitely financially stable. So most of the situations she was so concerned with were no longer issues. Just my two cents. That is my viewpoint on her pregnancy situation. You may not agree but that is my take on it. It just wasn't real to her, yet.
