Gave this to a colleague with a really reluctant struggling reader the other day. She just returned it as the student loved it and now wants to read more. Hooray! It is really silly, full of gasps and giggles and perfect for a 1 sitting read.

Patricia says

I would classify it as a mostly female post-modern Peanuts gang.

Renee says

Not really a graphic novel since it's a bunch of Lela Lee's short comic strips, but it's hilarious! An example:

1. What are you doing?
  2. I'm spending quality time with my boyfriend.
    1. Let's go shopping?
    2. Hmm...love or merchandise?
    2. I'll take the merchandise!

Kim is most definitely my spirit sister

Still angry, still chipping away at stereotypes, still oddly delightful.

Mistakenly filed in the teen graphic novel section (although I think they might appreciate this, too).

Another fun and cute read from Lela Lee!

This time, it's full of funny satirical comics of various cultures. As always, it stars angry little girls!

This time around, my favorite is the Angry Asian Girl ^^

She and Disenchanted Jewish Girl got along so well I could cry lololol

Again, not particularly appropriate for Angry Little Girls, but I won't object a bigger girl to read this!

Didn't find it funny at all.

Snarky funny female focused graphic novel/ comic strip - right up my alley. Simple bright pictures with limited text and classic characters...must explore more of this author's work...

Ini adalah buku yang saya beli di event Book Bad Wolf 2017 lalu. Sejujurnya, buku ini juga cukup saya rekomendasikan untuk anak-anak. Akan tetapi, ketika saya membaca lebih lanjut buku ini, wah buku ini penuh dengan humor yang membutuhkan berpikir dan agak sarkastik. Lucu sih, namun tidak mudah dinikmati oleh anak-anak apalagi usia SD. Buku ini sebenarnya cukup mampu membuat kita berefleksi atas lelucon-lelucon dalam hidup. Terkadang kita sesuai dengan tokoh-tokoh yang ada di buku ini. Pemarah, mudah gusar, sulit bersyukur, terlalu sering khawatir, takut, gila, benci hal-hal yang normal, dll. Buku yang menarik, membuat saya mentertawakan diri sendiri.

These sweet little angry girls are so wonderful that I can hardly wait to go on to her third book! Lela Lee puts her finger on so many of the adult frustrations of life with humor and insight. Thank you, Ms. Lee!

Also freaking hilarious! I love that the little Asian girl is forever flipping people off in the front of both of these books. And the way her mom says "r" instead of "l".

Here's a sample of the ridiculously NON-PC'ness of this author:

disenchanted (jewish) princess to Angry Asian: "What's it like to be Asian?"

Angry Asian girl: "What's it like to be Jewish?"

DJP:I'm not really a practicing jew. I sometimes eat pork and you have to see the pictures - it's just hilarious!!

AAG: I'm not really a practicing Asian. I sometimes use a fork.

Here's one more example:

AAG: take that you little white girl!
DJP: I'm not white, you're white!
AAG: I'm not white. Asians face a lot of discrimination still.
DJP: Well, Jewish people have been persecuted for centuries.
AAG: Yeah, but we can't blend in.
(while they're playing tennis) DJP: Score. Your point.

:). Now, since it's an Asian who lent me this book, and my dad was raised Jewish, it's pretty hilarious. And ridiculously non-PC. good times ;)

Austin says

Quite a bit funnier than the first one I read!! Just read it in pretty much one sitting in the library of my school and I had to hold back my laughter during parts that were really hilarious.
