????? ?? (Darbar-e-Dil) Umera Ahmed

Meher Sami is a simple girl who prays five times a day, fasts in the month of Ramadan, doesn't lie and considers love 'a waste of time.' She is proud of the fact that her prayers are always listened upon by Allah; and pays no attention to what her friends have to say about love. Meanwhile her friends, while trying to change her modest views, are also jealous of her ability to devote her life so completely to Allah without a care about the world. Life takes a sharp turn, when she gets involved with a boy unintentionally.

Darbar-e-Dil (English: Court of Love) is the story of transformation of one's soul. Unlike the change for betterment this transformation is from good to bad. It was published in Khawateen Digest first.

Fahad Naeem says

In Darbar-e-Dil, Umera Ahmed emphasized the power of prayers in which help is sought from God. She discussed human eagerness to want something without knowing the fact that human mind is full of flaws, hasten towards its goals and try to find logic in all the events happened to him and around.

What I liked about this book is that it asks its readers to pray not what they want but pray what is good for them and not dwell if it appears to be against them in the first place.

I'd recommend it to everyone.

Qurat Ain says

Life itself is an illusion!

"Sabar" -a much needed component of life.

In a very good manner she decribed the Tolerance, patience, endurance and strong faith in Allaah.

A must read book.

Madiha Riaz says

Umera has a way of writing realities that shake your very being. this is one book that will leave you like that. Your perceptions about Dua, Allah, Jaldbazi and Sabar will be changed forever.

A real treat.

Rizwan says

Ummh Ok novel. But with a good message within it. Human should never prefer dunya and after sadness , should hold Islam tightly as it is the only solution.

Maryam says

When I first started it , I was expecting the usual Umera Ahmed's charm to work on me. But unfortunately that didn't happen. The story line wasn't strong enough for me and secondly , I couldn't relate to the girl's character . Like I've seen examples of such sort but nobody's that naive as Mehar was portrayed; keeping the fact in mind that she was also a psychology student .. i just couldnt digest how a girl with such strong beliefs, high morals and intellectual powers could succumb to such .. crap. But as they say, *teraaak he doobta ha, driver he ka accident hota ha* etc..

Enjoyed the first n last two pages of the novel so .. worth the read.

*Going to add something in my dua from now on thanks to Miss Umera for that .. *Allah say reham**

What I loved being reminded off from Umera this time?

●◦•Just have faith in Him that would shake the mountains and still not weaver . SubhanAllah◦•●

My favourite quotes from the novel would be added soon.

A must read for all young girls. Call me crazy but I am the one who is recommending this book to girls at all the book fairs in Karachi ;-)

So if you are reading these lines because some hijabi at a book fair recommended this to you. "Hello again"

Shabana Mukhtar says

Most of Umera's stories give you goosebumps. This one did, too.

This was one of the novels that I read in digest, and waited patiently for the next issue to come.

A beautifully written story, with just the right amount of curiosity. It kept me hooked. And I like how she played with the names. Okay, not saying much or it will ruin the books for those who have not read it yet.

Do read.

"Mujhe dua mangna aata hai."

Fateha says

It was good novel and can be relevant to a lot of us in this generation of mobile phones but not everyone can relate to it.

I cherish it because it was my first ever novel as a teenager so it's close to my heart.
