Busted! Jerry Scott , Jim Borgman

Mention the comic strip Zits to teenagers or their parents and they'll eagerly launch into a long list of their favorite stories and strips that made it to the refrigerator door, making Zits the most effective form of communication between parents and their teens since the Post-it note. It's a phenomenon that takes place daily all over the world as teens and their parents thrust the latest exploits of Jeremy and his parents in front of each other and say, "This is so you!" This latest collection contains the story of Jeremy and Hector's surefire moneymaking summer koi pond digging business, the e-mail breakup between Sara and Jeremy, and over 200 more of this "essence of adolescence" comic strip.

Duane says

Anybody that has a teenager will love this comic strip. Heck, everybody who remembers BEING a teenager will love this strip. Filled with family style humor, you can't help but chuckle to yourself as you read about Jeremy and the daily struggles he deals with. A great read to lighten your day.

Julie Rylie says

There is not much to say about Zits. It's about a teenager's life and how he deals with his pairs and the conflicts with the parents and how his mom tries to hard to connect with him, bla bla

This one of course, it's also about the relationship with this girl.

Mary says

Funny before, sometimes during, most times after the events. True life.

Catherine says

This book want as laugh-out-loud funny as the earlier editions.
