Janice says

Another of my favorite Little Golden Books.

Gena says

My favorite Golden Book from my childhood and I made sure I read it to my kids. Still one of the best.

Becky Everhart says

I really loved this book growing up and still have my copy somewhere. I think this is a good book for young children who are getting ready to go to school--preschool or kindergarten--to show some things that might go on at their new school and help ease some anxiety.

Samantha K. says

While this was how my childhood kindergarten experience was, I used my old book to teach my child how her upcoming preschool experience would be. Although there are no naps in her preschool- I modified the story to stretching- my preschooler loves the story and it helped prepare for school.

Christina says

This is one of the sweetest books ever. I'm so glad I managed to keep it for all of these years. It's a timeless story that can be told from one generation to the next. After all, in spite of how much the world continues to change, Kindergarten has remained (relatively) the same.

Stacy says

It seems things have changed a lot in the Kindergarten classroom from whence we were kids, or even since this book was published. My grand daughter was comparing her experience in the kindergarten classroom to the girl in the book-- seems that they no longer take naps, finger paint, play with clay, or musical instruments. Wow how things are now different!

"We Like Kindergarten" could be read to a group of preschoolers at the end of the year to get them ready to go into kindergarten. Or a kindergarten class on the first day of school.

My mom named my sister after the little sister in this book! What could be sweeter than that?

I love love love the illustrations in this book. See some of those illustrations here

The art here is creepy. The children look like aliens or those old time creepy dolls with the eyes that close on their own. Invasion of the body snatchers here.

This is a book for beginners to help children know what to expect in Kindergarten. They mostly play in this old time kindergarten and I know my niece started learning to read so that is now different from the past.

The nephew picked out this book from our home shelf and he didn't like this book either. He gave it 1 star. I thought its intent was good.

Debbie Sally says

It's been a long time. This is my childhood book. I really love it.

Jennie says

This is the first book I ever read by myself. I remember sitting my parents down with me on their bed and reading to them from cover to cover. I still keep it on my bookshelf to this day.

Jacqueline says

I am pretty sure that this is the second book that I ever read by myself. I think the thing that I loved the most about it was that the main character looks like me! I also loved that there was a turtle at her school. Later on, I was sad that my Kindergarten didn't have a turtle. I still like turtles to this day.

This is a very sweet book showing a little girl going through the day in a traditional type of Kindergarten (think lots of play.) Oh! Also, the main character, Carol, has a little sister who looked like my very own little sister. It was almost as if the book was written just for me!

(5 stars probably mostly for the nostalgia factor, although I really did love it at 5!)

Miri says

An adorable Little Golden Book told by a little girl attending kindergarten.

Caroline Petty says

This has always been a favorite book of mine. After reading it again as an adult, i realized that the classroom in the story is very similar to how i feel that i want to organize my classroom. It really promotes imagination, sharing, and innocence that are so fun in elementary school. It lets children know that they should be excited to go to school when the teacher makes sure that every student is acknowledged and encouraged in their dreams.

Dianna says

Charming pictures by Eloise Wilkin. The text is nothing special but I do like its simplicity. The book is a bit dated; the kindergarten pictured is more like preschool today. (Although how many teachers play the piano for their students to sing? Too bad times have changed so much.)
