Piranha Dale Brown , Jim DeFelice

Hidden in the Nevada desert is America's most advanced aerospace weapons-testing facility. Dreamland is the place where the nation's top minds come to develop artillery and aircraft that push beyond the cutting edge. And where the Air Force's top guns come to test them--on the front lines of a new era in warfare...

A showdown between Indian and Chinese navies in the Pacific gives Dreamland the opportunity to test their new remote-operated underwater probe. Using the Piranha for surveillance, the U.S. watches as India and China circle each other like sharks. When the tension erupts into violence, innocent civilians are caught in the fray--and Captain Breanna Stockard is shot down trying to rescue them. To save her, Dreamland rushes an unmanned bomber project off the drawing boards--and into the sky...

Mark says

The usual Brown offering from this storyline...The Dreamland crew stops the outbreak of WWII between China and India in the Pacific...OK read

Shorewalker says

A lot of techno-talk in it - typical Dale Brown - but story line is easy to follow. Good read.

Tim says

This story is based around 1997. It's a bit choppy and slow for a Dale Brown thriller and for some reason deals around lots of human emotions. Brown is better with combat than dealing with personalities. 5 of 10 stars

Michael Brookes says

Every so often I enjoy reading a good techno-thriller. Dale Brown rarely disappoints and this is no exception, although the ending did feel a little bit flat.

Still the B-52 action more than makes up for that :-)
