Will Fain, U.S. Marshal, Book 8 R.O. Lane

Will Fain meets the new judge for the Western District of Texas and is put on the chase for a killer for hire that is bumping off witnesses and stifling justice. Isum Wood, chief deputy, puts his life on the line, hoping the assassin will attack him, but that Will and the other deputies can kill the assassin before he can turn his deadly Sharps rifle on Isum.

Will's deputies seek out killers all over Texas and New Mexico, going after the worst of the worst and putting their lives on the line. In contrast to how tough and ruthless they must be in their jobs, each marshal has a family that they love and cherish and a loving side to them that nobody but their families ever sees. It's another classic western from R. O. Lane with just a touch of romance and love.

Figured him out.

I did. I figured R .O. Out. He writes well, I will certainly give him that. But what he does is write a few good stories and link them together by having the main character hire more deputies and link them to gather. A good writer could develop 5 or more books with those plots and R.O. Is a good writer but a lazy one. We all know that a short story is easier to write because you don't have to develop much background for the characters. So he churns them out for us to imagine all the rest. I have read all 8 of his books but I am done I will not waste my time or his talent by reading number 9.

An ROL. Western/The Marshals/Jobs/Families

ROL. has. penned the 8th Will Fain, US.. Marshal. This novel begins with family. The Texas Rangers chase, arrest and jail bad men in the Texas and New Mexico Territory. Their jobs are dangerous. Therefore, the Marshals are glad to return to family to live and enjoy the trials of parenting. This is an excellent read for the genre.....DEHS

I never fire of Will Fain and his Deputy Marshals, as everything the do becomes so realistic.enjoyed over 48 years of law enforcement and corrections, so I can emphasize with their trials and tribulations. These stories are so refreshing, and the planning involved is more than believable. Too, the precised delivery of each decision is so adept to each and every successful delivery of each and every endeavour. Mr. Lane is an apparent perfectionist, as each episode is perfection personified! If you live action, then follow U. S. Marshal Will Fain and his entourage!

Definitely another five star masterpiece by an exceptionally talented author of old American folklore adventures. Never a dull moment throughout the entire book, and a never ending series of exciting gunplay. Will, and his compatriots, are always ready to fight all wrongs, regardless of the suspects status within their area. A little suspense blended in with some of the ongoing adventures, but when right is on their side, the good guys overcome all odds.

Mr. Lane is the master, when it comes to character selections, and his descriptive episodes excels in each and every exciting series of gunfights. Too, his ongoing adventurous storylines successfully keeps the reader's undivided attention from beginning to end. It is definitely prevalent that the appropriate research is completely before the author begins his first paragraph!

Definitely recommend this compassionate, and very impressive rendition of our real old American folklore adventures, as I was hooked from beginning to end. If you love fast moving excitement of western gunfights, adept law enforcement, heartwarming family romance and entertaining episodes of western frontier life, then this book was released for your enjoyment! Grab a copy, get into your easy chair, ask not to be disturbed for a few hours, and let the fun begin! Happy trails!

Will Fain Book 8

I have enjoyed all the Will Fain books. I like how each of the deputies gets a chance to shine. In this book Abrams the half Cherokee gets justice for his 16 year old cousin who was kidnapped and murdered by the McAdoo gang. And the team takes down an assassin who murdered witnesses to crime. An exciting read as always.

THE ASSIGNMENTS

Will Fain, U. S. Marshal and his Chief Deputy Marshal Isum Wood, whose a retire Pony Solder, Dell, Abram who are Deputy Marshals are a force to reckon with; loyal, fearless men who lay their lives down to hunt down the worse of worse men wanted by the law. They are are all family men, Will owns a money making horse breeding ranch.

The other three U. S. Marshal are ranchers also doing well. The tide turns every now and then when one or all of them become prey, which happened to Isum, they were on assignments to capture a paid assassin, who for the right money would murder anyone including women. Plot was his name, a Bible quoting ex-Confederate sniper who was hired to murder witnesses of upcoming trials. Isum hit him upside his head for his bias mouth, who also thought he was the cat's meow. This beating was hiding an alternative motive which was to get Plot to come after Isum, only because they didn't have enough evidence to charge him with all these assassinations. The beating caused Plot eye damage seeing double..I guess you could consider this an even steven.

Everyone whose read the other books in this series, will all agree that they are the "bomb" and once you start and finish, you'll be hoovering around for the next book.

Everyone keep your coffee hot and ALWAYS check your front and back trails....yah goo....
