Lizzie and Charlie Peterson have fostered 4 puppies in the past. This time though their parents have also fallen in love with their current foster puppy, Buddy. Will Buddy be the one that the Peterson family finally decide to keep as their own? I continue to love these books chock full of dogs and puppies.

Emma McCaffrey says

This book was good. It is about a family mainly the 2 kids who foster dogs and rescue too. This book is #5 in the series. I would recommend this book to people who like dogs. There is many adventures in all the books. This one is one of my favorites because they keep Buddy the dog as there family pet. The theme in this book is hard work pays off because they take care of there foster dog and show resposibilty and then get to keep him.

Another good read for my daughter and me. Taking care of one puppy is always hard, but taking on to foster three puppies and their mother is an even harder task for Lizzie and her family, but one they are all willing to work together on. We haven't read these in order, but my daughter enjoys getting to read about all the dogs/puppies that get fostered and on to new homes. She is ready to move on and see what adventure is next.....

This was a cute book and a very quick read. I think young kids (5 and up) would love this book to pieces. It has a good story and is great for dog lovers or just plain animals lovers. I am a cat lover but still found a good story in this book.

This hysterical realistic fiction is about a mother and 3 puppies who were found next to a firehouse when a firefighter found them. He took them to a animal shelter named caring paws. But the problem is that caring paws doesn't have more space for the mother and 3 puppies. So, the Petersons foster the dog and puppies. What I want to remember is when the puppies were doing a food fight. I have schema with this book because I have a puppy who was as humorous as the 3 puppies.

Twin Text Non-fiction Entry #5

I chose to pair this book with "Learning to Care for a Dog." I chose to pair these two books together because they share a commonality-dogs. In the fiction book, a family struggles to take care of a dog and her litter while trying to find them forever homes.

I chose the non-fiction for this book because children always want to have pets-especially dogs. I chose to partner the "Buddy" book with "learning to Care for a Dog" because children need to be aware of how much work it is to care for a dog, and this book will help them understand how much work it is, and if they have a pet at home, they will understand how much their parents do to take care of the dog and the child.

I think it will be a great book for my children to read so they can become aware of the hard work and all the sacrifices their parents make to take care of a dog, or multiple dogs.
