Hurricane in Paradise Deborah Brown

Set against the steamy backdrop of Tarpon Cove's sun-kissed, tropical waters, sexy sleuths and best friends Madison and Fab are at it again dealing with the occasional dead body. Hidden just below the surface of the small town lies an underworld, one steeped in deceit, corruption, and deadly secrets. It's only a matter of time before Madison and Fab find themselves on a collision course with the police, who consider them likely suspects in a murder.

Ride along on their adventures when the duo realizes that a family member is missing and pull themselves away from all jobs to track him down. Theories: walked away, freak accident, kidnapped? If so, then why no ransom demand?

Hurricane in Paradise is book ten in the thrilling and humorous provocative Paradise series, which finds the two waist-deep in mystery and romance. It is a smart, adventurous read that delivers heart-thumping, non-stop action. Join Madison and Fab as they solve the most twisted of cases, through unconventional — and highly entertaining — measures... sometimes in flip-flops.

Finally a new adventure of Madison and Fab, two great friends and colleagues with a great ability to solve mysteries but also to get in trouble. Fortunately there are their sexy and skilled boyfriends to save them. This time they face a hurricane, a relative disappeared into thin and squatters in their home. They obviously will solve another murder but this time should exonerate themselves.

Although it is the tenth book in the series can be read as a standalone, the author is very good at providing the missing information to fully understand the story and the relationships between the characters without weighing the plot.

The story is very well written, with the right amount of suspense, romance and humor. Many dialogues are really sparkling.

Highly recommended

Deborah Brown has delivered another great adventure with Madison, Fab and friends! A hurricane forces them to evacuate and return to problems. Squatters moved in and then the usual dead body and mystery happen. I was pulled in and finished this book as fast as ever. I love adventure and Madison and Fab are the best pair ever! I hope the series never ends.

Book 10! Wow - this series has been a fun ride! Each book can be read as a standalone but getting this far into the series, a little flashback was included to give this book a start. A hurricane has a way of creating chaos all on its own but if you've read any of the other books in the series, then you know that chaos tends to follow Madison and Fab everywhere. The hurricane displaces the gals only for them to return home to find squatters with a legal lease that leads Madison to fight them in court. It doesn't take long for the winds to begin blowing hard again as she fights her way through murder and crazy new characters. The mixture of crazy characters (who we often see in future books time to time!) and humor have me in stitches. I've never read a series so long that has kept me enthralled in each one so much and looking forward to the next.

I received this book through Beck Valley Books Book Tours, I have volunteered to share my review and all the opinions are 100% my own.

When a hurricane forces Madison to evacuate, she does it reluctantly. A couple of days later she returns, only to find a group of professional squatters have moved in. Since the leader of the group seems to have a legal notarized contract, the only thing Madison can do is take him to court. Even though the guy doesn't show up for court, Madison still has to wait for approval to move back in. In the meantime, the guy is discovered behind the property, murdered. Which leaves Madison as suspect #1.

My BFF's are back, with the usual oddball misfits tagging along. This time, there was more dead bodies, more hijinks, and even more comical hookups than in the past. It was non-stop hilarity throughout, and had me wondering what outrageous event would happen next. This has been my favorite series from the beginning, and it just keeps getting better and better. If you're not reading this series, you truly don't know what you are missing.

This is my all-time favorite mystery series. I have read all ten books, and they just keep getting better as the series continues. Madison and Fabiana are back at it again, along with the usual cast of supporting characters.

This time around, the main story revolves around a hurricane that causes them to evacuate the Keys---and then they return to find squatters living in their house, claiming they are legally renting it. When one of the squatters is murdered, Madison is the prime suspect. Will the gang be able to solve the murder before she's locked up for life?

As if that weren't enough to deal with, her brother Brad disappears without a trace, and they put all their resources toward tracking him down. This book is action packed from beginning to end, and I'm already anxious to read the NEXT one!

Elizabeth Towns says

Deborah Brown is back with Book 10 in the Paradise Series with a Hurricane, and the metaphoric title is apt. The action is fast paced and jolting, but there is always fun and humor with the Florida Keys clan.

Whether you are a fan of the series or a new reader, this is a great humorous mystery, which is one of my favorite kinds. Madison Westin and her partner in crime-solving, Fab Merceau are in for a tumultuous adventure full of danger, and who knows where the wind will blow them; literally. After a hurricane forces evacuation, Madison returns to the house from which her boyfriend had to drag her out of to safety to find squatters – with squatter's rights! She has to take them to court to get her property back. In the midst of all of that, the main squatter is found dead behind one of her rental properties, and her #1 suspect.

The Paradise series is full of wonderfully rounded characters, and Madison's lawyer grandmother who shows up for a visit in the midst of this newest mysterious debacle does not disappoint! Of course, her mom and mom's beau, Jimmy Spoon (yes the name is befitting), plus both detectives steamy dreamy boyfriends are on deck for this caper, and race, to clear Madison's name.

Brown's writing is fast paced, and delivers well. I'm always envisioning the action between Fab and Madison and anticipating the next move, delighted by their skill and wit. Unexpected twists and surprise characters keep me on edge and wanting more. Each new edition to the series is a plum.

**I received this book free of charge in exchange for my honest review.

Hurricane in Paradise by Deborah Brown

What could be better than living in the Florida sunshine and beauty of Naples? Nothing at all, but in Hurricane in Paradise, a set of friends embark on solving a murder mystery with their sexy significant others.

This is book 10 in the Florida Keys Mystery Series. In this one, they have squatters in their ocean front home, they have two murders and a kidnapping. How can a set of friends have so much drama in their day to day lives? It gets much better.

There is a rough grandmother, a man who doesn't like to wear pants, police officers that are full of themselves and so much more. This book will keep you on your toes and re-reading parts of it if you don't pay close attention.

Madison (the narrator of the story) and her sexy undercover cop boyfriend (who can never seem to keep control of her) have a love that is deeply rooted. Fab (Madison's best friend) and her model BF not only live with Madison, but they are both dramatic and fun characters.

IF you like unpredictable story lines, murder plots, suspense and straight out funny characters, this book is for you.

"Welcome Home!" That is the feeling I get every time I open up a novel from Deborah Brown. Tarpon Cove, in the Florida Keys, is the setting for Brown's merry band of mischief makers. Madison and Fab seem like an unlikely duo for best friends, but don't let that trick you. Opposites attract and that is a great thing here.

Madison is all about family, and it shows in everything she does. When it is family that is in trouble you can expect that there will be hell to pay! Her brother is missing and a hurricane hits her home. It really destroys nothing substantial, but leaves a band of dirty, rude squatters in her home. You'd think she could walk up and say "Get Out!" and they'd leave--being squatters and all. But poor Madison, she is not that lucky.

Time to break out the big guns...only they misfire...and Madison is stuck with squatters. How'd that happen you ask?

Ms. Brown is such a fun, fast-paced author! This story starts out with a big hurricane and a need to evacuate Madison's beloved house. When Madison and Fab return several surprises await them, none of them good.

Fab and Madison get back to business, but then Madison's brother Brad goes missing, and everything comes to a screeching halt while they look for him.

The search will take them through the backwoods of Florida, the underbelly of the population, and into some terrifying situations. Can they get their family whole again?

I received this book through Beck Valley Books Book Tours, I have volunteered to share my review and all the opinions are 100% my own.

This book is part of a series, but can definitely be read as a stand alone. However, you must read them all! You'll thank me for the suggestion!

I've missed reading about Madison and Fab! Their adventures are great! I feel like we're good friends and we picked up where we last left off! I love that these books CAN be read as standalone books, because I do think there might be a couple that I haven't read yet. You know they're good books, because this is book #10 in the series!

I think there wasn't nearly as much action in Hurricane in Paradise BUT that didn't make it any less good. I have enjoyed the crime solving in these books.

I love the characters, story line, humor and the who done it suspense, which I've never figured out before it was announced. I've thought I did, only to be proven wrong!

Read this series of books! You won't be disappointed!

Oh, how I have missed Madison and Fab! I feel like we left off right where we started and picked up like old friends.

Each of the Paradise Series books can be read as a stand alone, but I am telling you; you do not want to miss a single one! They are funny and mysterious which makes them such an amazing combination. (Not to mention there are two smokin' hot boys that make it all the more better!)

I did find myself slightly irritated at the start. Because each book can be read as a stand alone, the author threw in some back story or clarification to things that I – the obsessed reader that I am – already knew. I totally understand why she did it; it just bugged me because I knew the info and did not need a refresher. I wanted to get to the good stuff! (Just me being impatient.)

Hurricane in Paradise was... less “active” than some of the past books, but did not make it any less enjoyable. Of course, there is usually more than one “crime” going on to be solved (my favorite part) and this one didn't miss that!

Seedy characters, a missing person, and of course; a new “bimbo” at Brick Famosa Motors keeps me on my toes.

I love the characters. I love the humor. I love the mystery aspect (I don't know that I have ever figured out the “who done it” too soon!)

I highly recommend the Paradise Series. You won't be disappointed. (And I hope they keep coming!)

Madison and Fabiana are back and so is a hurricane which starts the book by causing havoc and leaving a decided aftermath for the pair to sort out. All the usual favourites are back, Creole and Didier, Mother and Spoon and the crazy cast of characters at The Cottages. The pace is full on as usual and there are enough escapades (thanks to the roguish Brick) to keep the girls fully occupied. This time though one of their cases is more personal than usual as Brad, Madison's brother goes missing and it's a race to find him. There are laugh out loud moments and the dialogue is punchy. We know these two so well now that I found myself wishing for a new team member to add a little freshness to challenge the girls' friendship. And it would be great to know a little more about Fab's mysterious French background. Fans of the series will love this one and Brown's gift is to create stories which stand equally as well alone as they do as a part of a series.

I was given a free copy of this book in return for an honest review.

Nicki Conroy says

While I haven't read all of the Paradise books, I have read several and this newest addition, Hurricane in Paradise, does not disappoint in the least.

The book starts with, what else?, a hurricane in the Florida Keys. I've seen damage from hurricanes and can only image that in an island chain, the damage would be more severe. There are several little bumps from the hurricane that I would never have anticipated so found these intriguing.

Madison is solving a mystery of her own this book, as opposed to one from Brick. Her brother goes missing and she knows she has to find him. The ups and downs, twists and turns in the search for him kept me reading without stop. I love a good mystery and there are several in this book but the mystery of what happened to Madison's brother is the overarching one.

You should pick up the book and find out how the brave, not quite yet a private investigator by license manages to find her brother with the help of family and friends.

I received this book through Beck Valley Books Book Tours, I have volunteered to share my review and all the opinions are 100% my own.

Maddy and Fab survived the hurricane

The best friends, buddies and soul sisters did it again. They survived the hurricane. This is another heart pumping story from the series. Ms. Deborah Brown never stop to amazed me.

Creole, Didier and Spoon try to keep their women on their toes but it will never happened especially when Brad is missing. Maddy will do everything to save her brother's life. She is willing to risk her life.

This book is hard to put it down. It is a long book with non-stop action from these troublemakers. It is wild with so many funny and crazy moments which even makes the story so much fun to read. It is never a dull moments while reading this book.

If you love to read romance with actions and laugh out loud moments, Florida Keys series is a must read.
