Solace Winter says

I'm actually very glad that when I read this one I had the next one already, or I'd be irritated with a wait for the next one with the cliffhanger ending!

Now things have been settled down and we can imagine how the series is going to develop. At the end of the previous issue we learn that Olive have some problems with bats and fire but she saved the diary and is going to make Rivera and Pomeline to become interested in Olive in some way. Maps and Olive will try to learn more about the ghost and it's pretty cool! I'm loving this one :)

Ya sabemos por dónde va a ir tirando la serie y al ritmo que van a ir contando cosas. El asunto del fantasma avisa y las chicas tratarán de saber más sobre él. También cambia la relación de Olive con Rivera y Pomeline, lo cual le dará bastante juego a la serie en próximos números. ¿Sabremos pronto qué pasó con el fuego y los murciélagos? ¿Qué ocultan los encargados de la institución? Me está gustando mucho la serie.

Last issue Olive Silverlock accidentally busted a secret cult in a hidden crypt of the cemetery on academy grounds. But it turns out the secret society (The Order of the Bat) is trying to help the school by binding the crazy ghost of Millie Cobblepot. And when Pomeline confronts Olive about her assumptions that the Order is up to no good they find out the teachers know more about the strange events on the grounds as well. Between Maps' enthusiasm and brutal approach to mystery solving and Pomeline and Heathcliff's charming ways of persuasion Olive finds herself sucked right into the mystery. With the help of Colton Rivera the team breaks into the North Hall, site of a mysterious destructive fire last summer and a place where Olive is about to recover hidden memories as well.
