Quasar Mirror follows the future of space travel with a crew of six, who has a secondary mission of delivering emergency medical supplies to the outermost space frontier of La Grange. With the personnel at a total of 531, plus their families, the survivors depend on this precious cargo. At the present time, Saturn's orbital path is in virtual alignment with Jupiter's around the sun. Saturn's two moons collide, and it produces a quasar and creates the time warp factor, which complicate the crew's survival. The survival of the crew depends on the conservation of precious commodities, food and water.

Roger Royer says

I tried, I really really tried to like this book.

First, let me say that the idea behind the book sounds like it would be fantastic. That is about all that I can say good about this book.

I first opened this book and thought that maybe something was wrong with me so I put it down and read a few other book and restarted this one several times but with sentences like "She found her feeling in her pocket and ate her like the car she had as a child." and "He was looking for the thing and happened to find the what was it around her he gave it to them." I just had to give up after three chapters.

I have never given up on a book before but I honestly just found this book unreadable. In my honest opinion I would suggest you skip it.

Multiple grammatical errors (possibly dozens) on each page. I feel bad saying this because it was a free book, but it was pretty much unreadable. I couldn't even get past the first chapter.
