Karla says

[a scene where the heroine's kinda sorta love interest Sean Farrell is shot by his Serbian (or is he Montenegrin?) father-in-law after the guy shoots his daughter in the head, cuts open her stomach, takes out the fetus and decapitates it (hide spoiler)]

Kerrie says

I tried. Threw in the towel at pg. 128 because:

MarySue character is so MarySue.

Plot consisted of vignettes with few threads tying them together.

The Balkan politics were not explained well. At all. When 4 pages go by and you wonder what you just read because you didn't understand a thing (in a trashy romance novel)... that was a sign.

This was an earnest buddy read that I failed on. Yet another "awesome book from high school" falls on its face on the 2nd time around.
