??????? Prakash Vir Sharma

A collection of great social stories on socio-political and socio-religious issues of India.

It's not an ordinary book but it's an MRI report of society, religions and politics.

I loved writing this short read and hope that you would love to read "behind the scenes" of various religions and political outfits.

Aditi Agarwal says

Great book on Indian social/political issues in Hindi language. The author has very good command on the language.

Archies says

This book is a very good mirror of societal issues, evils, psychology as well as general mentality. The author stitched them in a very good way. Stories such as chakrayuha, tarakki ka raaj, catalyst, gudiya, chartitraheen, majburi etc. in fact all stories are good. though level of involvement is okay.

but the fact is that they are inspired by what is happening and what has happened around us.

Surabhi Sharma says

Katputli is a collection of 15 short stories themed on the social evil of the society. These stories encourage the reader to think again and why it is important to talk about them. The author initiated this book to bring them in light.

It is a good and short read of 86 pages. You have seen the same circumstances near you from which the protagonists of the stories are fighting with. The stories are encouraging and motivating for the change.
