"For one hundred and eighty years I've no' touched another" ... "Have never even given a woman a second look. And it was easy to do so. But now I canna seem to keep my hands off a slip of a witch", he rasped at her ear. "A witch who has me feeling like I'll die if I doona find out what it'd be like to kiss her." ... "O' course it's a goddamned spell."

Bowen MacRieve

Bowen is a werewolf that lost his mate one hundred and eighty years ago as she was fleeing him. He blames himself for her death and has lost all desire to live. He's lost weight and drinks too much alcohol. Bowen has not touched nor had desire for another, until meeting Mariketa.

Mariketa the Awaited

Mariketa is a young witch, only twenty-three years old. She hasn't grown into her immortality yet but she has just entered The Talisman's Hie. It's a treacherous scavenger hunt amongst immortals and she wants to represent her coven well. But there is a prophecy that Mari's mate will take her away from her coven and keep her locked away. So she hides herself under a hooded cloak and changes her appearance with a glamour spell.

Yeah, that cloak is a total buzz kill. No one buys her drinks at karaoke night and it's hard to meet men when no one can check you out. Men are so visual. But Bowen can't seem to keep his eyes off her, even under that cloak. And the feeling is mutual. He's a hottie of a werewolf that has been mourning his mate. But he is fine as hell with his dark hair and amber eye and his Scottish accent is delicious.

Bowen has entered the competition in hopes of winning a key that will allow him to go back in time and save his mate. But when Mariketa and Bowen end up trapped in a cave and her cloak is removed, Bowen is unable to resist her any longer.

She suddenly knew two things: He was about to kiss her so fiercely she would never be the same again. And he would hate himself for it afterward and despise her forever.

These two have a passion that they can not deny. Bowen is feeling guilty for desiring Mari, but he suspects that she has be-spelled him. Mariketa is young, but she is also very powerful. Did she unknowingly place a lust spell on Bowen? Or is there something more sinister going on?

This book was fast paced, full of action, explosions, and a very lusty werewolf. I am enjoying this series tremendously but I hope the next books have more external conflict between the main couple and less internal conflict. The first four books have plotted enemies to fall in love with mortal enemies.

It was fun for a few books but I am getting tired of it. We've had a vampire hating valkyrie fall in love with a vampire, a vampire hating werewolf fall in love with a vampire, and a witch hating werewolf fall in love with a witch. Enough already!!

Thank goodness the next book is about a Vampire and a Ghost. They are not mortal enemies. Should be fun!!!

“You could almost make me forget what I really want.”

Yay!! My first ever Kresley Cole book...and it was FANTASTIC! This was a completely addicting book that I flew through. I just couldn't get enough! I admit, I probably should have started at book one so I knew the gist of all the worldbuilding and different creatures; but I still understood the book relatively well. Bowen and Mari's relationship was a rollercoaster of angst, misunderstandings and some serious sexual tension...but I loved it. Apart they were great characters but together, they were near perfect. Now that I've gotten a taste for this series I know that I'm not going to be able to hold myself back!

Mariketa and Bowen are both competing a magical competition, with the prize being the ability to go back in time twice. Mari is a young witch who has been prophesied to have great powers, only she's not quite there yet. She is competing for her Coven, and with the hope of unlocking some of this power that supposedly awaits her. Bowen is competing for a very different reason. He must go back in time to save his mate, the very one that he killed thousands of years before. In this magical and fantastical world, mates are bound so tightly that it is almost impossible to live once a mate dies. This is why Bowen wants to find a way to bring his mate back, in order to stop this agony that is eating him alive. The only problem is, he is feeling attracted to the young witch, even if he believes himself to be faithful to his dead mate.

After an accident during the competition, Mari finds herself with Bowen, the very man that could have caused her death. Now, she must rely on him to help them get back to safety. This is especially hard when Bowen is persistent in treating Mari like his mate, which was his only explanation for the powerful attraction he felt for her. But Mari doesn't want to be used in that way, so she tries to stifle her feelings for Bowen, unless he decides that she is really his mate. However, romance is not the only thing on the table in her life, with a very powerful and evil force trying to destroy the coven and essentially her world. Mari must find a way to unlock her powers, but if she does this, will she still have time for Bowen; a Lykae who hates witches.

“Damn it, MacRieve, if you keep calling me kitten, then I'm going to start calling you something equivalent, like hound dog - and then we'll both be losers.”

The romance in this book was downright electrifying. Despite a seriously rocky start and a very adversarial relationship, Bowen and Mira were undeniably attracted to each other. The sexual chemistry between this pair was off-the-charts, and was introduced in the first few chapters of the novel. I was physically pained just wanting these characters to get together already, but let me tell you, it was totally worth it when they did. The characters were totally different, but somehow together they were just perfect. Not only was it a very hot and sexy relationship, but they also had many sweet moments. This greatly contrasted the asshole-ish actions that Bowen showed towards Mari in the beginning, which I didn't exactly appreciate. Nonetheless, by the end of the book, I was fully invested in their romance which was both greatly emotional and very sexually driven.

I admit, there was quite a large portion of the book where I was quite confused as to what was happening. I'm not sure whether this is because I jumped right into the series without reading previous books, or the world building didn't connect to me. I'd say that the whole competition at the start didn't resonate with me. Nonetheless, after this moment I seemed to connect more to the characters and so I was less focused on the direction of the plot. This book was so character driven, and I'd take a guess that the whole series is similar. The plot was interesting, don't get me wrong, but the relationships were what really kept me going. In saying this, towards the climax at the end, I was fully invested in the story and I was dying to know the outcome. This slow connection to the plot did prevent me from enjoying the story early on, but it didn't really ruin my reading experience altogether.

I'm most excited about exploring this series further because there is such an elaborate, fantastical world that I'm just dying to get to know. There are so many different creatures with internal politics, wars, animosity and allies. I saw a little snippet of this in the book, guy I'm sure that it will only get more intense as the series continues. I think this is the most detailed paranormal book that I have ever read, and this is only the beginning.

“What’s your favorite place to visit?” He absently answered, “Wherever you are.”
“Bowen, five things about you can’t all be about me.”
But you’re the only good thing that I’ve got.”

Blacky Romance Addict says

He crossed to her, clasped her upper arms, and pulled her to her feet.
Gazing down at her, his voice breaking low, he said, "Doona bring me back to life only to destroy me once more."

What a f*cking awesome book!

I swear, this series is just getting better and better!!!!

I loved Bowen in the previous books and I couldn't wait for his own, and it didn't disappoint! It's my favorite from this series so far and I don't think that will change <3

And again, I LOVE this narrator <3 The way he did Bowen had me melting <3 <3 <3 <3

Jo ★The Book Sloth★ says

I could write for the millionth time about how much I love this series but I won't. I'll tell you why this book is one of my favourite three in the series so far...

Bowen

I have a thing for tortured heroes. I can't help loving them but I don't like the destroyed ones. Those who give up are not my favourite. I loved that Bowen never gave up. He fought for what he wanted, whether that was a dead mate back or a certain, pain in the ass, witch. He had his moments of assholiness but he was honest so that never annoyed me. I prefer hard truths to lies. Picturing him like this didn't hurt either!;)

Mariketa

Mariketa has abandonment issues. Her parents both left her at different times so the idea of being passed up doesn't sit well with her. This makes her relationship with Bowen that much more difficult since he is obviously looking for his dead mate. This, combined with the fact that everyone expects greatness from her but so far she has only displayed volatile and uncontrollable powers make her want to prove that she can do better. I liked Mariketa's determination and stubbornness as well as the fact that she focused on her goal, whether attainable or not. She worked to get what she wanted and she let no-one walk all over her.

Bowen and Mariketa together were a time bomb but they were also perfect for each other. The book is of the usual "Cole" pattern, which translates to "Mariketa is a witch, Bowen hates witches more than any other Lore species but he can't resist her". You would think it would get old but to be honest I don't care.

And Nix, my precious...

PS. I want a book on the fairies. Why no fairies so far??:D

4 to 4 1/2 stars

I thoroughly enjoyed reading Wicked Deeds on a Winter's Night, the fourth book in the Immortals After Dark series. I was not as enamored with this story as I was with the third book, but I had fun reading it just the same.

The hero, Bowen, is one of the most tortured heroes I've read, yet he is genuine, likable and charming in a brusque way. His protective, consuming, and voracious nature toward his mate Mariketa, the heroine, was awe-inspiring and endearing. I truly adore Bowen's character.

The heroine, Mariketa (Mari), is a fantastic and fun character. I loved her spunk and determination but also her vulnerability and insecurity. She is my favorite heroine in the series thus far. I loved her.

The plot twist at the end of this book took me by utter surprise. I honestly did not see the turn of events coming. How awesome is that?! I love when an author has the ability to surprise me.

My only complaint about this book—and the series—and reason for the slight drop in rating is the annoying relationship pattern I've noticed in the books I've read thus far. In each book the hero and heroine continually banter with each other, which is fun and would be fine, if they—but mostly the heroine—didn't also continue to fight their attraction and inevitable relationship until the last few chapters of book. Since it's obvious Ms. Cole is a gifted and creative writer I can only hope she rectifies this relationship pattern in future books.

Other than that, I can't seem get enough of this fantastic series, full of colorful, unique, fascinating, and compelling characters. One thing for sure, Kristley Cole has created one captivating and exciting mythical world.

The witch seethed with power. Spells and magicks swirled about her.

I read this for the Witches Halloween bingo square.

I liked this one more than the previous and while it still had the OTT-ness and SEX (that Bowen powerless against the tree scene is all at once sort of uncomfortable and hot), the fun, crazy, and heat between our leads, re-energized me to continue with the series. I find myself liking the witches more than the valykrie, so this focusing on them was better for me.

*Under her voice, she said, "Whatever---I jumped you! I started it."
"Aye," he began solemnly, "and that was a highlight of my long life."*

Bowen and Mari had a sweet but challenging connection that made them fun to read but again, the whole Bowen being a werewolf and NEEDING to claim his mate made the boners and sex OTT. I know a lot like this but it's a bit out of my realm.

All at once Mari understood why people fought losing battles---because if you want something badly enough, you can't do anything else but fight for it.

My favorite part of the story and what gave it an extra half star was the author's subtle inclusion of the idea that "monsters" are feeling beings too. From the incubi paying Mari to end them to Bowen at full werewolf pausing a moment before breaking down the door. It brought depth and feeling to the characters and world where monsters is definitely a shades of grey word.

Does this series have plans to go on forever because with the insane amount of characters and story offshoots, it feels like it could go on forever.

I cheated and looked ahead through the series to make sure Rydstrom gets a story after being introduced to him here. He does, book #5, and I MUST have it!

“Darwin says people like you need to die.”

Despite the fact that the whole story of Wicked Deeds on a Winter's Night isn't my cuppa after all, I still loved every character Kresley Cole put into this book. Bowen was such a jerk for me when I first met him, he treats Mariketa so bad I wanted to kick his ass then. Mari, on the other hand, is generous, lovely and tender. She is that type of heroine who is always hurt by a coldhearted hero. I pitied her so damn much and don't understand why I gave this book five stars even though it's not my taste.

“Damn it, MacRieve, if you keep calling me kitten, then I'm going to start calling you something equivalent, like hound dog - and then we'll both be losers.”

Maybe it's because of the dynamic between the main characters that beat me up, or the sex scenes being so damn hot I fanned my face all the time while I was reading. Anyway, the second half of Wicked Deeds on a Winter's Night was unexpectedly awesome after the crap of you-are-not-my-mate-but-I-still-want-you plot in the beginning almost bumped me off. The book finally redeemed itself with the conclusion so well I had to give it five stars.

“Bashful? She and her friends made Girls Gone Wild look like a quilting circle.”

Oh ! Have I already told you that I loved Bowen for some parts of him ? He's flat out hot. SO DAMN HOT that I didn't care about his jerky and silly characteristic at all. It's just that. I'm so biased when it comes to Kresley Cole's books.

Francesca the Fierce (Under the Covers Book Blog) says

I loved this book!! I fell in love with Bowe in A Hunger Like No Other and since then I've wanted him to get his happy ending. I will admit that when we heard others speaking about his dead mate she didn't sound like the best match for him.

Well this book did not disappoint! It was full of twists and turns, emotion, humor and more great characters!! It picks up where the last one left off and Bowe has to go rescue Mari from the cave he trapped her in so she can lift his curse or he'll die.

As all good, sexy lykae he has a very caveman attitude (yes, he does throw her over his shoulder to a cave to have his wicked way with her, yum!) But we also get to see a side of him that's been hurting for centuries thinking he lost his mate and he could never have that again.

Mari is an amazing heroine, she's kick ass!! I still love the valkyrie but the witches are so much fun!! She's fun, she doesn't take any  from anyone and she knows what she wants.

I was pleasantly surprised with the turn of events. I kept wondering is she or isn't she and the resolution at the end was unexpected. Job well done Ms Cole!

Bowe had his "jerk, I'm going to bash his skull to the wall!" moments but Mari always gave it right back! And his lack of judgement was always short lived so I forgive him. He's still my favorite lykae so far.

Sophia Triad says

Bowen MacRieve, Lykae & Mariketa the Awaited, Witch

"You could almost make me forget what I really want."

1200 years old Lykae Bowen has known exactly what he wants for a few centuries now. And this is definitely NOT the 23 years old distracting, distrusting and destructing witch Mariketa.

His only goal is getting back to winter of 1827 and save his mate who ran away from him during a full moon night when she saw his monster and she was killed by an accident. His beautiful, fragile, perfect, fae princess Mariah.

Lonely desperate Bowen has spent the last centuries in misery and sorrow, without a purpose in his life until he discovered the Hie competition -where the majority of the Lore factions are represented. The ultimate prize is the key to go back in time and he has to have it. Moreover Nyx has predicted that this competition is the key in order to get his mate.

Mariketa –although she is still young and still not an immortal- wants to have the key as well, mainly to prove a point. There is no way this REALLY OLD, wolf-like, scary Scottish is going to stop her. No matter how much attracted she is to him. Anyway, he mourns for his lost mate. And there is no way Mariketa will be a second choice for anyone ever again! Plus the fact that she hates him since Bowen locked her up with a few immortals and many incubus demons in a dark cave without food and water for weeks.

This is a story of

-deception where even the strongest wolf could be played by a cunning witch

-lost love that can make the strongest wolf weak when it is a fake, but it can also make the strongest wolf even stronger when it is the real thing

-finding yourself and your purpose in life even if it means that you have to destroy someone much stronger than you and that you may destroy yourself at the process and you will never be yourself again.

- the fact that a Lykae/wolf is truly an animal and sometimes this fact can be really handy.

This is surely my favourite book so far in the series. It can be read in so many different levels.

It is passionate (hooray!!! for the wolves), funny, packed with adventure but equally packed with devastating drama and painful truth.

It is a good thing that true love always wins!

Candace says

I am totally addicted to this series! Each book only serves to suck me into this story further. Who knew that crossing supernatural beings would be so hot!

This fourth book in the 'Immortals After Dark' series, tells the story of Bowen and Mari, a werewolf and a powerful witch. From the start, their relationship is contentious. Bowen's family has a long and bitter rivalry with witches.

When Bowen begins to feel an attraction toward Mari, he assumes that she has cast a spell on him. After all, he's spent years suffering after the loss of his "mate" following a tragic accident. Never in all those years had he felt an attraction to another, so he knows that the witch must be up to something.

Believed to be the most powerful witch in her coven, Mari is just beginning to harness her power. She's led a sheltered life and has been abandoned by everyone she ever loved. She can't deny her attraction to the sexy werewolf, but she refuses to be second-best again.

Eventually, Bowen cannot fight his attraction any longer. He has to choose between the love that was, and the love that could be. Once he sets out to win Mari over, he's got his work cut out for him. He'll have to work doubly hard to undo the damage he's already done.

Just when things start to work out for these two, everything gets turned upside down. There were some pretty big twists that I didn't see coming. In my opinion, this book contains the most surprising plot twists in the series, so far.

Overall, I enjoyed every minute of this story. It was fun and sexy, with a great storyline. More and more, I'm beginning to draw connections between all of the characters from the different books.

I listened to the Audible version and the narration was great. Bowen's Scottish accent was sexy as hell! I highly recommend the audiobook. I'll be starting the next one immediately.

Exina says

"I still don't see why we couldn't sleep in that cave," Mari said as MacRieve led her out into the night.
"Because my cave's better than their cave."

I've read the first 8 installments of the Immortals After Dark series, and so far, Bowen and Mariketa's book is my favorite.

It is a very exciting part of the series. The world of the Lore is revealed in more details: its inhabitants, rules, myths, and relations. The story represents deep emotions, hard choices, incredible twists, destiny, prophecy, magic, passion, adorable characters, and sparkling dialogues.

I loved Bowen and Mariketa's (not only) verbal archness with each other. Mariketa is fated to Bowen, and he is also unique for her, because he fulfills the prophecy given to Mariketa. He is a catalyst for her magic, and able to control her power and protect Mariketa, even from herself.

The ending is completely astonishing. I was so engaged in the action of the story, as Bowen and Mariketa continually fight with each other, save each other, and fight for each other, that I simply didn't see what was coming, and I was just shocked by the limitless cruelty and evil of the antagonist.

I'm totally in love with Bowen, the "shameless, tricky wolf". He is vehement, ferocious, sometimes surly, but passionate and very gentle. He suffers from his guilt and pain because of the death of his mate, Mariah; struggles with his several centuries-old prejudices toward witches, and his doubt whether he is given another mate.

He was so... wolfy. So teasing. And Mari realized this was kind of fun. She half-expected him to play-trip her and start nipping at her ears. And she suspected she'd love it.

Mariketa, "the wee, bloody witch" is an amazing character. She is a brave, sensual, devious, and a very young woman with infinite but volatile power and strong principles. I admire her bravery, and forgiving attitude.

"How in the hell could you have gotten here so quickly?"
"Missed you, witch. Ran headlong. Now hang up the bloody phone."
"Oh, great Hekate, is that his voice?" Carrow cried. "I just had an orgasm!"

Until this installment I didn't realize that many of the plots in this series run parallel to each other, so when I found myself back in the midst of the Hie I was ecstatic. It was interesting finding out what happened to Bowen after Sebastian trapped him, and learning more about the witch who cursed him. The two protagonists played a wonderfully devious game of cat and mouse throughout WICKED DEEDS ON A WINTER'S NIGHT which made their dialogue hysterically funny, and their lovemaking mercurial, especially when MacRieve accidentally screamed his ex's name. I had a blast listening to this title; Kresley Cole & Robert Petkoff are a powerhouse of audiobook wizardry!

Thus far, we've become versed in the intricate Lore surrounding this author's Valkyries, vampires, and werewolves, so you'd be right to infer that my expectations vis-à-vis her witches were through the roof. Mariketa's also part fey which means that Cole had heaps of awesome new material to work with, and rest assured that none of it was wasted. I loved discovering the powers related to the five casts, exploring the specifics surrounding the Awaited's prophecy, and the captromancer powers were just plain cool (and creepy!). Other than a bit of glamour, and a couple of secondary characters, the fey elements were negligible which I'm assuming was intentional, and will be explored in a future installment.

I liked how dissimilar the two protagonists were; Mari is only twenty-two years old, hasn't been frozen into her immortality yet, and is the embodiment of a modern young woman. In comparison, Bowen is ancient, has already found & lost his mate, and is prejudiced towards witches. Also, their relationship really got off on the wrong foot what with Mariketa cursing the werewolf, and MacRieve entombing her with crazed incubi. Watching these two attempt to bridge the gap was an exercise in futility, but when they finally give in to their baser instincts their chemistry was as clear as day. The twist at the end was exquisite, and I adored how it all came together.

With only three IMMORTALS AFTER DARK installments under my belt, and still ten left to go (plus novellas), I risk repeating myself with regards to Robert Petkoff's narration; however for the time being I've no shortage of positive adjectives to use when it comes to his delivery of this series. His sinfully dreamy Scottish accent was back for a second lap, and in addition to it he unleashed Bowen's beast with a guttural werewolf voice that succeeded in doing naughty things to my insides. I'm sure that Petkoff captured Mari's character beautifully as well, but for some strange reason all I can remember is MacRieve. RAWR!

WICKED DEEDS ON A WINTER'S NIGHT's title is self-explanatory or in other words... hot, hot, HOT!

What can I say that hasn't been said? Loved it, almost as much as the previous book, "No Rest for the Wicked". If you enjoy sexual tension and sexual bantering in your books, this read will not disappoint! And when the H/H FINALLY get down to it--yowza!

Loved the hero, Bowen, although at first it was hard to read the Scottish accent, but I endured, and then the accent became downright sexy! And so far Mari is my favorite heroine of the IAD series. She was funny, brave, and good at putting the often arrogant and cock-sure Bowen in his place! Fabulous ending, too. Made me reach for the next one in the series, and started reading it immediately!

I am stopping half way through Book 5 to write this short 'review' because I was so eager to continue that I failed to say even a few words about this yet another AWESOME story!!

This series is like a book version of Lays potato chips - you can't read just one! I am addicted and I REGRET NOTHING! I've said this before and I'll say it again: Kresley Cole has this uncanny ability to create characters you can't help but fall head over heels in love with! She is the only author that made me want to be BFFs with EVERY SINGLE ONE OF HER HEROINES ... and I am SUPER PICKY when it comes to my female leads! And her Heroes ... 'GAH!' is the only word that comes to mind.

Basically, this series can be summed up by reading the following gushing 'non-reviews reviews' [aka my ramblings] of:

The Warlord Wants Forever (IAD Book 1)

A Hunger Like No Other (IAD Book 2)

No Rest For The Wicked (IAD Book 3)
