Weekend With Her Bachelor by Jeannie Moon is the fourth book in the Bachelor Auction Returns. It is a sweet story that focuses on a best friends to lovers relationship. Or is it a second chance relationship. Maybe it's both.

Dr. Gavin Clark joins his high school football teammates in an auction to raise money for the construction of a helipad at the hospital in Marietta. This was in response of the death of their coach's grandson who was in an automobile accident and flown to Bozeman. As the attending physician at his arrival in Bozeman, Gavin believed that he might have lived if he was transported to the Marietta hospital instead. He's all in until he realized his former high school crush and best friend, Ally Beaumont, is in the bidding crowd.

Ally Beaumont left Marietta to start her own event planning company in Seattle. She is in the middle of planning a destination wedding for a friend which will be held at a luxury ranch resort outside of Marietta. After hearing about the auction, Ally sells the engagement ring she kept after her ex-fiancé broke off their engagement shortly before the wedding. It gives Ally enough money to be the winning bid on Gavin. Ally wants Gavin to be her date at this wedding, especially since her ex-fiancé is the best man.

Their date takes them to a romantic cabin/tent at the resort. While in those close quarters, in a magical location, Gavin and Ally discover how much they missed each other over the years, as well as missed out while being apart. These two need to figure out whether or not their chemistry and history is enough for them to take a chance on a forever relationship.

This was a fun and entertaining story with likeable characters that you want to support and cheer on hoping for that happy ending. The characters were well written and complex. The story line was riveting and kept my attention to the very end. I really enjoyed reading this book and had trouble putting this book down because Jeannie Moon is a wonderful story teller. I highly recommend this book to other readers.

I received an ARC of this book in exchange for a fair and honest review.

Jeannie Moon writes these second chance stories so well. I like her easy writing style that not only makes them fast reads but also enjoyable and they are feel-good satisfying. I just finished reading her holiday novel called This Christmas and the first 4 chapters of this was included as a bonus and before I knew it I was hooked and one-clicking away.

In Weekend With Her Bachelor by Jeannie Moon, when Ally needs a date for a wedding weekend as fate would have it there's a bachelor auction happening in her home town of Marietta. Her first love just happens to be one of the bachelor's and Ally finds herself in a bidding war to win him with the intention of taking him to the wedding with her. Not just for one night either, but for a weekend. Ally wins, and she and Gavin discover that the flames between them were never really doused. The chemistry and connection is still there, but their past and their present stand between them. Ally is convinced they can just be friends...Gavin is not as convinced. Things heat up pretty quickly, but will it just be for a weekend, or will they have a second chance for a future together? Old hurts need to be put to rest before anything either of them can move on...but will they be able to move on together?

Weekend with Her Bachelor is a fun, fast paced second chance romantic read. It was amusing how Ally tried to convince herself they could just be friends, while Gavin was pretty open about the impossibility of them being so close and yet staying away from each other. Jeannie Moon packs a lot of emotion, heat, and entertainment into Weekend with Her Bachelor, and I liked getting to know Gavin and Ally as they navigated an adult relationship...whether it's only for a weekend or something more. There are many obstacles in their path physically and emotionally, and watching them find their way made for a good read. I liked both of them, but Gavin in particular with his humor made him a great character.

I really liked the secondary characters in Weekend with her Bachelor from Lars to Gavin and Ally's family's and their words of wisdom. They helped make the story!

I'd recommend Weekend with Her Bachelor to any romance reader.

My Rating:

4.5

Favorite Quotes:

“Gavin tugged at his cuffs, before flashing a devastating grin. Confident and sexy, without the cocky edge, there was a collective gasp as every ovary in the place exploded.”

“... he couldn't help but love her confidence. It had become her most attractive feature.”

My Review:

A lively, sexy, and sweet second chance love story laced with humor, banter, and fun. I liked the fun and sassy characters from the beginning, even when they frustrated me and I wanted to give them a smack with my kindle. This is a quick and easy read with a satisfying and feel good ending.

Review:

This is a fun and sweet second chance romance. It is a short story which took me a little more than an hour to read. The plot is pretty simple. Ally is an event planner. She is planning a wedding for a friend and finds out that her ex fiance will be at the wedding with the woman that he dumped her for, two days before her own wedding. Now she is faced with the dilemma of attending the wedding of her friend, which she has organized, dateless, or find someone to pose as her new romance. A phone call from a friend from back home may have a solution to her problem. People from her home town are running a charity auction to raise money for a helipad for the local hospital. On the auction block are four guys from her high school, and one of them used to be her best friend and possibly the love of her life. Hot, sizzling chemistry is abundant in this book. This story moves rather quickly. It is full of humor, lust and possibilities. Weekend with Her Bachelor has the HEA that makes this type of book so enjoyable. The story takes place pretty much over a couple of weeks. There isn't much room for character development, but the author makes sure you have the background of Gavan and this is Gavin and Ally's story.

Ally making this a very enjoyable quick read.

Gavin Clark is determined to help Marietta reach its fundraising goal for the town's hospital charity.

Ally Beaumon is Gavin Clark former high school crush.

Ally Beaumont stared at the guest list and quietly cursed under her breath.

She knew there was a possibility her asshole of an ex-boyfriend would be at the destination wedding she'd been planning for a close friend, but she had no idea he was one of the groomsmen, and that he was going to be one of her main contacts, during the festivities.

Ally needs a date for the weekend wedding.

Weekend with Her Bachelor by Jeannie Moon is a 3 stars book.

Jeannie Moon brings us the finale in what has been another great Bachelor Auction series from Tule Publishing. Gavin and Ally's story may be fairly short, but they take the series out on a high.

"And now for our last bachelor of the night, I give you Doctor Gavin Clark!"

I'm fairly partial to a doctor, let alone one who's also a cowboy, so Gavin was already winning with me before he even started. On duty when his high school football coach's grandson was brought in to the ER, that night ended in tragedy but it's the reason for the bachelor auction and the reason Gavin and Ally's paths cross once again when she places the winning bid.

I love both the friends-to-lovers and second-chance tropes and whilst they're not exactly the closest of friends anymore, the feelings Gavin and Ally have for one another haven't faded over the years, and they bring a myriad of emotion to the table. Humour and banter is balanced with tenderness and passion and whilst it does all happen fairly quickly for this couple it was fairly fitting to their personalities and their journey.

*"This was about her very best friend whom she'd hurt.
And she'd missed him. She'd missed him so much."*

It's always a little bittersweet when you come to the end of a series that you've enjoyed hugely, but with loveable, relatable characters, a fast-paced storyline and an epilogue that wraps things up nicely overall, Weekend with Her Bachelor was a pleasure to read.

"It was hard to feel lonely in a place like Marietta."

Char Sowers says

A sweet and endearing story of long lost love. "Weekend With Her Bachelor" reunites a once nerdy band geek with her best friend and the popular golden boy and high school football star. Their teenage feelings had developed beyond those of friendship but were broken by a cruel act of vengeance by a prototypical "Mean Girl". Now older and wiser they realize that they could have handled things differently but lost touch over the years. A tragic accident, a need for a convenience date, and a charity bachelor auction happens to bring the Hero and Heroine together again. Jeanie Moon crafts an amusing small town setting, inhabits it with colorful residents, and lets the gossipy fun begin. The action is fast paced so the book is a quick read - but then again, I am a fast reader. The hero, Grant, is a laid back Alpha male - I should say he's Alpha on the inside - not so much externally. The heroine, Ally, has risen above her frumpy nerdy past, become a successful business owner, and grown into her own - in the words of one of Grant's friends, "She's hot." However, the issue that plagued them in the past, which caused their "break up" is the same emotional flaw they are suffering from now - and history may just repeat itself because of it. There is a pompous ex-fiancé and a vexing "Mean Girl" however - the main characters are their own worst enemies.

"Weekend With Her Bachelor" is a heartwarming story of finding your way back to your lost love. It's also amusing because everyone, except the couple involved, see their future as being inevitable - always has - and hey take every opportunity to call them idiots - to their faces. Jeanie Moon's Bachelor Auction series brings together a slew of engaging characters within a quaint Montana community where EVERYONE knows EVERYONE'S business and isn't afraid to share and add in their two cents. The couple is perfect together and they do ultimately undergo a great deal of emotional growth. The characters are not too angsty - they are just delightful. The sex is fun and enjoyable. This is a perfect read if you want a book that's not too heavy or need something light after reading some intense novels.

okay, I don't know if I need to say this again, but I LOVE ALL THINGS Marietta, Montana! #TRUTH

This town has produced some seriously good stories in the last couple of years and this was no exception. I love it so much that I read out of order .. GASP ... I know .. ME .. it's ridiculous LOL okay, so Weekend With Her Bachelor delivered on all kinds of fronts in spades...

**small town goodness** check check

**family love** check check

I could keep going but I think you feel me by now ... the book is just one huge check check!

At first you might think .. oh no, this story-line sounds too cliché and predictable.. and even tho it actually may be, Jeannie Moon does an exceptional job of making fresh and real. She developed her leads fully and their romance properly. She didn't miss a beat. Nothing came across as silly or farfetched even tho it was quite a short story. Which is another testament to Jeannie's writing powers. The book might be short in page length, but it delivered a thorough punch :)

I just loved everything about it and now I have three previous Bachelor Auction books on my TBR!!

The last bachelor is up for auction, Gavin an Emergency Room doctor who will do anything for his high school football coach. Ally is in a bind, needs a date for a weekend wedding that she is the event planner for. This is a second chance romance between Ally and Gavin, what can a weekend do but bring up old memories and how attracted they are to each other. Living in two different cities can they make it work?

Loved, loved this story. A novella that is packed full of emotion, that will have you rooting for Ally and Gavin. Jeannie Moon knows how to write a romance story that will leave you smiling for a long time!

4.5 "You've bought yourself a doctor..." Stars!

Another great return to Marietta, for the final book in the Bachelor Auction Returns series. Gavin and Ally's second chance reconnection was a quick and relatively drama free read. I think what I liked most was the book mainly focussed on them and there was very little outside interaction apart from that the start and the end.

He was her first crush, her first dance, her first kiss. Gavin was her first everything...

One thing the story also highlighted beautifully and without getting annoying is that a relationship always works better when you are communicating with each other, but then if they had been good at that this book would have been a whole other story!

It's pretty much always a pleasure to return to Marietta, Montana, and I look forward to visiting again soon.

Fast paced, Easy reading, makes you feel good book!

Gavin is an emergency medicine doctor in Bozeman Montana that hates surprises. Gavin was working the emergency room when a flight for life rescue came in from Marietta Montana. Marietta was Gavin's home town. Unfortunately for Gavin, he knows the critically ill patient and is heart broken to see this child, who happens to be the football coaches son Troy.

Ally is a wedding planner in Seattle. She has a wedding to attend that her former fiance Lars would be attending. The wedding would occur in Montana, her home town. Lisa, Ally's friend from high school contacts Ally about an auction that will be occurring in her home town two weeks before the wedding that she was dreading. Lisa shares all of the information concerning the bachelor auction with Ally. Most of the men going up for auction were star football players in their high school days. Gavin Clark and Ally used to be best friends. They understood each other. The auction is to raise funds for a helicopter pad at Marietta General. Had they had a helicopter pad when Troy's accident occurred, he might have lived. Ally started thinking....

She still had the engagement ring given to her by Lars. It was huge and ugly and would bring a wonderful amount that she could donate for the auction. Maybe Ally would not have to go to the wedding by herself if she won the auction.

Ally and Gavin see each other across the crowded room. She looks fabulous. He is extremely attractive. It would not be a hardship to have Dr Gavin Clark on her arm for the wedding at the ranch. Who will win the auction? Will Ally have a date to the wedding? Will true love bring together friends from another lifetime? This book is fast paced and will make your heart feel good.

Another amazing book by Jeannie Moon!

I received an ebook copy from the publisher for the purpose of an honest review. I was not compensated for this review. All conclusions are my own.
